Since its founding in 2020, Yayasan Keadilan dan Perdamaian Indonesia (YKPI) has been committed to advancing justice, peace, and human rights across Indonesia.

We believe sustainable peace grows from inclusive and accountable governance, empowered communities, grassroots initiatives, and strong collaboration among civil society and government actors.

YKPI is guided by the principle that violence, discrimination, and exclusion can be addressed through nonviolent action, critical awareness, and collective effort.

Over the years, we have worked alongside civil society organizations and communities, contributing to initiatives and policy developments that promote justice, equality, and social inclusion.

We remain committed to ethical governance, transparency, safeguarding, and accountability in all aspects of our work.

Looking ahead, YKPI will continue strengthening community voices and fostering pathways toward a more just and peaceful Indonesia.

On behalf of the Management Board, we extend our sincere appreciation to our partners, staff, donors, and the communities who make this work possible.

2024 at a Glance

In 2024, YKPI collaborated with civil society partners and communities across Indonesia to strengthen justice, peace, and social inclusion.

Together, we achieved:

- 5 communities engaged through dialogue and local initiatives
- 12 civil society organization (CSO) partners collaborating
- 3,803 direct beneficiaries reached through partner-led and selected YKPI initiatives

Our work was implemented primarily through partnerships with local Civil Society Organizations and community groups, alongside selected initiatives led directly by YKPI.

What Changed in 2024

In 2024, our collaboration with partners and communities contributed to:

- More active participation of community members in local dialogue and decision-making processes.
- Greater attention in policy discussions to gender-based violence and the protection of vulnerable groups.
- More inclusive local engagement through dialogue on freedom of religion or belief, gender equality, disability rights, and social inclusion.
- Through advocacy and collaboration with partners, strengthened participation of marginalized and vulnerable groups in local processes, contributing to policy improvements and expanded access to rights and public services.
- Improved access to civil administration services and public recognition for indigenous belief communities and religious minorities.
- Through the youth internship program, increased understanding among participants of diversity, gender equality, and social inclusion.

While progress varies across regions and contexts, these efforts contributed to stronger community collaboration, increased awareness of rights, and more inclusive participation in local governance.

Strategic Advocacy and Policy Engagement

In 2024, YKPI worked closely with partners to support advocacy on freedom of religion or belief, gender equality, disability rights and social inclusion.

Together with civil society partners, we engaged community leaders and government representatives at district, provincial, and national levels.

Community input was used in policy discussions to strengthen the protection of rights and improve access to public services.

YKPI also worked with partners to engage in policy discussions related to religious harmony and social cohesion.

Based on research and community input, we shared analysis and recommendations to help ensure that policies support inclusion, protect vulnerable groups, and strengthen social harmony.

Through coordinated communication and public engagement, we encouraged wider dialogue on these issues.

Over the past two years, these advocacy efforts contributed to improvements in civil administration services, disability inclusion, women's protection policies, and institutional mechanisms to address sexual violence.

Key Stories of Change

Strengthening Protection Through Dialogue – Aceh

In Aceh, discussions on local regulations helped increase attention to gender-based violence and the protection of vulnerable groups.

Through collaboration with civil society partners, community members were able to raise shared concerns and contribute perspectives to policy dialogues.

These efforts encouraged more inclusive dialogue at both local and national levels.

Strengthening Inclusion and Access – Kupang, NTT

In Kupang, collaboration with a local partner supported marginalized groups, to participate more actively in community discussions and local decision-making.

The initiative also improved access to civil administration services. This helped strengthen inclusion in local governance and public services.

Improving Access for Indigenous Belief Communities – Yogyakarta

In Yogyakarta, support for indigenous belief communities and religious minorities improved access to civil administration services, including marriage registration and official documentation.

Engagement with media practitioners helped bring community perspectives into wider public discussions and promote greater understanding and inclusion.

Monitoring, Learning, and Accountability
